THE CHRONICLES AND MEMORIALS
OF
GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND
DURING THE MIDDLE AGES.

ON the 26th of January 1857, the Master of the Rolls submitted to the Treasury a proposal for the publication of materials for the History of this Country from the Invasion of the Romans to the reign of Henry VIII.

The Master of the Rolls suggested that these materials should be selected for publication under competent editors without reference to periodical or chronological arrangement, without mutilation or abridgment, preference being given, in the first instance, to such materials as were most scarce and valuable.

He proposed that each chronicle or historical document to be edited should be treated in the same way as if the editor were engaged on an Editio Princeps; and for this purpose the most correct text should be formed from an accurate collation of the best MSS.

To render the work more generally useful, the Master of the Rolls suggested that the editor should give an account of the MSS. employed by him, of their age and their peculiarities; that he should add to the work a brief account of the life and times of the author, and any remarks necessary to explain the chronology; but no other note or comment was to be allowed, except what might be necessary to establish the correctness of the text.

The works to be published in octavo, separately, as they were finished; the whole responsibility of the task resting upon the editors, who were to be chosen by the Master of the Rolls with the sanction of the Treasury.

The Lords of Her Majesty's Treasury, after a careful consideration of the subject, expressed their opinion in a Treasury Minute, dated February 9, 1857, that the plan recommended by the Master of the Rolls "was well calculated for the accomplishment of this important national object, in an effectual and satisfactory manner, within a reasonable time, and provided proper attention be paid to economy, in making the detailed arrangements, without unnecessary expense."

They expressed their approbation of the proposal that each Chronicle and historical document should be edited in such a manner as to represent with all possible correctness the text of each writer, derived from a collation of the best MSS., and that no notes should be added, except such as were illustrative of the various readings. They suggested, however, that the preface to each work should contain, in addition to the particulars proposed by the Master of the Rolls, a biographical account of the author, so far as authentic materials existed for that purpose, and an estimate of his historical credibility and value.

INTRODUCTION.

THE materials for the present volume have been gathered from the following sources :—

Sources of the materials for this volume.

1. Royal Charters.
2. Privy Seal Writs.
3. Signed Bills.
4. Patent Rolls.
5. Close Rolls.
6. French Rolls.
7. The Charter Roll, endorsed “Carta de tempore Henrici Septimi.”
8. The Auditor’s Calendar of Files, 1485–1522 (entitled “Brevia de magno et privat. sigill. ab anno primo Henrici VII. usq. annum xiiii. Henrici VIII. solubilia in Recept. Scaccarii”).

10. The Book of the Duchy of Lancaster for Henry VII.’s reign.
11. The Roll of the same duchy for the same reign.
12. Writs relating to clerical subsidies granted in the provinces of Canterbury and York.
13. The Roll of the Great Wardrobe ; and,
14. The Collection of Great Wardrobe Records, from which last I have taken the full and precise account of Sir Robert Willoughby’s “Empcions and Provisions of Stuff”—a notable and significant document !—for the coronation of the first sovereign of the House of Tudor.

The Book of Coronations.

Had this valuable document come to the hands of the Editor two years sooner, it would have fallen into its proper place among his materials for the history of the first year of this reign. But the volume containing those materials had already passed from the press to the public when this document, together with other wardrobe accounts and memoranda of coronations, were removed from the Lord Chamberlain's department to the Record Office, and were all stitched together with more heed to their individual safety than to their chronological order.

Sir R. Willoughby's
"Emp-cions and Provisions"
for Hen.
VII.'s coronation.

In this we have the outline of a very different spectacle from the rugged and hasty ceremonial on the reeking field of Bosworth. There a crown found in the thickest of the slain was placed on the successful adventurer's brow, with no other accompaniment than the cheers of an excited soldiery; here we have the description of an event—only nine weeks afterwards—which, apart from its political and social value, must have presented a spectacle of material splendour and refinement which had probably never been at this time equalled at the coronation of any English monarch. This view of the event, however, will be more properly touched upon at a subsequent period of this Series. Meanwhile we may point out the great value of this document, as presenting reliable information upon the character and prices of articles of noble and courtly costume, and the remuneration of the different artistic industries connected with their production. There are, however, occasionally evident inaccuracies in the document; and, that its testimony may not on this account be doubted, an opportunity is taken of calling the reader's attention to mis-statements which must not be attributed to its latest transcriber.

Occasional mistakes

Comprising seventy-one separate bills, upwards of four hundred and fifty separate reckonings, the account exhibits a few obvious errors which are not likely to escape ^{in the} the notice of those whose taste or business may lead ^{account.} them to examine the commercial and financial accuracy of former generations. A few examples will explain the nature of these mistakes, and satisfy the reader that they do not, to any appreciable extent, affect the value of the document.

On p. 4, where the price of 48 yards of scarlet cloth, bought of Olyver Warner at 9s. 4*d.* a yard, is given as 3*l.* 13s. 8*d.*; the last computation on p. 7, where the cost of 14½ yards of blue sarsinet, bought of Richard Laykyn at 10s. 8*d.* a yard, is put at 4*l.* 2s. 2*d.*; the last computation but one on p. 9, where the price of 2½ yards of black satin at 10s. a yard is put at 30s.; and on p. 10, where two errors appear in the account of moneys paid to John Fisser, mercer, for crimson velvet and tartan: the first mistake making the price of 5¼ yards of velvet amount to 3*l.* 0s. 6*d.*, while the second 6s. 0s. 12*d.* as the sum of 3*l.* and 3*l.* 0s. 6*d.*

These and similar inaccuracies in the bill were de- ^{Nature} tected when the Editor was correcting for the press a ^{of the} proof sheet which agreed precisely with the "copy," and ^{mistakes.} he was disposed to charge himself with carelessness in reading or transcribing the document. On re-examining the original record, however, and comparing it word by word, and figure by figure with his transcript, it was found that the errors were not attributable to the inadvertence of the transcriber. All the false reckonings of the copy were found in the original, penned in clear and unquestionable characters. After deliberate examination there seemed to be satisfactory reasons for assigning these mistakes purely to the carelessness of the clerk, who, in writing out the account—probably the first draft of the account subsequently submitted to the auditors of the Exchequer—had been guilty of some of the commonest slips of a negligent copyist. The error on p. 4 is chiefly due to the transposition of the characters l. and x. Had the accountant written "lxviii. yerdes scarlet" instead of "xlviii. yerdes," he would in that particular case have committed only the comparatively trivial inaccuracy of of putting viii. for iiiii., an error which might have been explained by the charitable supposition that he had really written the latter number, although the omission of a dot, and the excessive boldness of an accidental up-stroke had given the appearance of v. to the first i.

The mistakes noticed on pp. 7 and 9 seem to have been caused by the substitution of x. for v., a not uncommon slip of the accountants of early times. The price of xliiii. yerdes of blue sarsinet which cost in all 4*l.* 2*s.* 2*d.* was v. s. viii. d. per yard instead of x. s. viii. d. In like manner the accountant tripped when he wrote "xxx. s." instead of xxv. s. as the price of 2½ yards of black satin, at 10*s.* per yard.

In the account (p. 10) of moneys paid to John Fisser, it is no less obvious that he erred in the first instance by writing "i. quart" instead of "eli.," and in the second instance by marking down xii. d. instead of vi. d.

Although, as has been observed, these arithmetical inaccuracies appear in only a very small minority of the errors of the great Bill for the Coronation, they are sufficiently numerous and important to support the opinion that they could not have failed to be detected by official examiners, and that therefore the document in which they are found was nothing more than the first draft of the account which after undergoing inspection at the Exchequer, was engrossed on the membranes of a lost Wardrobe Roll.¹

Considerations which determined the Editor to preserve in the text

On discovering these inaccuracies, and satisfying himself that they were the results of mere clerical carelessness, the Editor was in doubt whether he should correct the obvious slips, or edit the mistakes together with the record. At first he was strongly disposed to take the former course, in case the blunders might shake the reader's confidence in the value of the document. But upon deliberation it was judged best to present the document as it was discovered, with such explanations as are here given, remembering the principle upon which the whole of this Rolls Series is founded, viz., to give historical and antiquarian students the opportunity of examining archives for themselves without a formal visit to the Search Room of the Record Office. Upon this principle it has been decided best to act thus in dealing with the many other accounts for which this volume of the "Materials" will be greatly, if not chiefly, valued by the student of this most interesting and hitherto undervalued portion of English History.¹

the arithmetical mistakes of the coronation bill and other records.

Of far deeper interest and more extensive historical importance is the next source whence this volume's contents have been gathered. Abounding, like the coronation bill, with information and guidance for the illustrator of the pomp and splendour of Henry VII.'s Court, the Roll of the Great Wardrobe is a far more important record, on account of the length of the period covered by its successive entries. Whilst the Bill exhibits the details of magnificent preparations by the officers of the wardrobe for a single spectacle, the

The Roll of the Great Wardrobe.

¹ Of the arithmetical inaccuracies found now and then in the writs and rolls, from which the greater part of this volume has been taken, an example may be found in p. 398, where the twelfth of forty marks is computed to be 46s. 5½d., instead of 44s. 5¼d., a mistake obviously attributable to one of the commonest of clerical errors, the misplacement (by transposition) of the right characters for a right sum. The clerk who drew the writ for Sir Thomas Turnebulle's monthly allowance intended to write "xliv. s. v. d. qr.," when currente calamo, he contradicted his own precise description of the grant, and inserted on the slip of vellum "xlvi. s. v. d. qr." It is right to state, once for all, that whenever, in the present volume, the reader comes upon any such obvious miscalculation, he may be assured that the error is a transcript of the original, and is not to be put to the discredit of transcriber or printer.

Roll affords us the particulars of the expenditure of the same department throughout the space of sixty-two years. Consisting of forty-eight membranes of unusual length—each of which is engrossed on both sides in the contracted and corrupt Latin of the old official scribes—this most entertaining and instructive chronicle opens with the account¹ rendered into the Exchequer by Beatrice Corneburgh, widow, of the total expenditure of the great wardrobe during her late husband's tenure of the office of keeper, i.e., from 22 Augt. 2 Hen. VII. to the second day of the following February, the day of his death. Presenting a perfect series of the accounts rendered into the Exchequer by the successive holders of the same office throughout the reigns of Henry the Seventh and his son, the Roll ends with the "Computus
 " Edmundi Peckenham, militis, coferarii hospicii domini
 " Regis ab ultimo die Septembris anno xxxviii. Regis
 " Henrici VIII. usque ultimum diem Marci primo anno
 " Regis E. Sexti."

Language of the Roll.

Consisting chiefly of the Latin of the official chroniclers of the period, the language of the Roll contains a considerable proportion of English words. In presenting the whole in an English dress, it has been our aim to condense as closely as we could, and to exhibit the facts of the record as concisely as possible. This has been done, however, with due regard to clearness and accuracy. When it has been deemed advisable to draw special attention to any English words or expressions in this volume, which appear to contain philological or archaeological peculiarities, or to mark their genuineness, they have been printed within inverted commas.²

The contents of the Roll belonging to the period covered by the present volume are the above-mentioned account of Beatrice Corneburgh,¹ and the first account rendered to Henry the Seventh's exchequer by Peter Curteis, Esq., who, having acted as chief "wardrober" to Richard III., succeeded Alvered Corneburgh, Esq., in the office of Keeper of the Great Wardrobe to Henry VII. From these two accounts may be obtained not only a general statement of the expenditure of the great wardrobe from 22 Augt. 2 Hen. VII. to Michaelmas in the fourth year of the same reign, but also a vast amount of information concerning the multitude of miscellaneous articles received into and delivered out of that department during the same term.

Wardrobe.

This wise and reticent king seems to have condoned by what has been generally denounced as a too rigid economy and parsimony in national and political expenditure for the indulgence of a personal taste, amounting almost to infatuation, for jewels and gay clothing. It will appear prominently all through these volumes, that Henry not only loved to possess and wear gorgeous and expensive dresses, but made his private gifts to consist chiefly of articles of clothing.³ Hence the great interest attaching to all the wardrobe accounts of the reign.

To appreciate the value of this Wardrobe Roll to the historian, as containing the description of the kinds and prices of wearing apparel, &c., it must be borne in mind that, besides being the warehouse of goods required for the costume of the sovereign, his immediate family, his chief ministers, the various officers of his household, and the hangers-on at court, the great wardrobe was also the king's storeroom of upholstery, stable furniture, and other materials needful for the economy of the royal household. So that, whilst these accounts may be consulted for information respecting the prices of any articles of court costume, from a velvet robe to a silken tassel—from a doublet of cloth of gold to a Venice garter—the antiquary may also find here the price of a feather bed, a quilted cushion, a piece of tapestry, a packet of nails, a bundle of rushes, or an iron shovel.

Writs respecting clerical subsides.

The writs relating to clerical subsidies are so curious, and afford information so likely to be of service to the ecclesiastical historian, that the Editor laments his inability to gather a larger number of particulars from these documents, which have been so blackened by long exposure, as to make it a labour of great difficulty to spell out even the least illegible of their faintly visible lines.

Archives
of the duchy of Lancaster.

The Lancaster Book and Lancaster Roll, from both of which the Editor has drawn largely for the contents of the present volume, are two of a series of records of the utmost value in the illustration of the social life and condition of the people during the time over which the archives of the duchy extend. Comprising two hundred and twenty-five vellum sheets, closely written on both sides, for the most part in Latin, the Lancaster Book (referred to in the body of this volume by the letters L. B.) is the register of the grants of officers and annuities, ecclesiastical presentations and leases, made during the reign of Henry the Seventh, out of the estates and revenues of the duchy. The Lancaster Roll (indicated by the letters L. R.) is made up of seventy-two skins of vellum, closely written on both sides, and consists chiefly of the copies of the precepts addressed to various officers of the duchy for the execution of affairs relating to its estates, or the persons dwelling on them. From the former record may be ascertained the various benefactions granted by the sovereign out of the ducal revenues to his faithful adherents, both at the critical time of his "late victorious felde" and during the scarcely less critical period of political uncertainty which followed. In the latter, the king is presented, acting on the advice of his "Council of the Duchy of Lancaster,"¹ more as a feudal Grand Seigneur than as a Sovereign, and from it may be learned the mode and temper in which he governed people who were less interesting to him as subjects than as tenants on his estates.

The second year of Henry's reign was remarkable for the characteristic munificence which he displayed in rewarding those who had shown him good and loyal service and had given him proofs of their fidelity and devotion. These rewards appear to have been bestowed to a great degree from confiscations of the property and offices of those who had won the name of "rebels" to him by serving Richard, and more extensively out of the Lancaster revenues.

On p. 30 we find the record of sixteen such grants, made on a single day (3 Sept. 1486), fifteen of them being payable out of the issues of the honor of Tutbury. Twenty days later (23 Sept. 1486²) he seems to have granted annuities for life out of the issues of the county palatine of Lancaster to eighty-four knights, esquires, and gentlemen—an exhibition of munificence no doubt designed to celebrate the birth of the king's first-born son. Probably no such genial sentiment can be accepted as the source of the other grants of the Lancaster Book, the majority of which were obviously dictated by the prudent and prosaic considerations which control men in matters of business. Be this as it may, when we bear in mind that the estates of the duchy lay in thirty-three different counties, in Wales, in London, and in Calais, the reader will readily agree that this register of such points as agreements for the concession of farms on the one hand, and for the payment of rents and the observance of carefully-drawn stipulations on the other, must afford a singularly vivid and valuable description of the industries and various local usages of the larger portion of the king's dominions.

The Lancaster Roll for the same reign.

Although the majority of entries on the Lancaster Roll relate to matters of inferior moment—such as liveries of timber for repairs, grants of materials for the restoration of churches, arrangements for the collection and improvement of rents—some of them furnish remarkable testimony as to the social condition of that class of people chiefly affected by the precepts. For instance, a suggestive view of the political disquiet among Henry's northern subjects is afforded by such documents as the letter of instructions¹ touching the hindrance offered to the toll-collectors at Collon Bridge, and the mischiefs occasioned by "the takyng of lyveries and conysaunces." A similar remark may be made with respect to the accounts² of the riots in the counties of Cambridge and Lincoln, which had their origin in disputes concerning ill-defined rights of common and turbary on uninclosed lands.

The Roll of the duchy is, moreover, rich in significant illustrations of the sovereign's care for his interests in all matters affecting, or likely to affect, his revenues. While the officers of his council were vigilant in enforcing covenants and gathering the dues of the Crown, they were quick to observe every novel practice which tended to encroach on its privileges. For example,³ the people of Leicester and other dealers having recourse to the fairs and markets of the town were sharply reprov'd for their misbehaviour in neglecting to use the shops and shambles which had been "bilded for their ease, and “saftē of their goodes,” and, to the rightful profit of the crown, had heretofore been “occupied by all commoners “and resorters to the seid markettes.” At the same time divers inhabitants of the city who had presumed to build ovens for the accommodation of the towns-folk and their own enrichment, to the detriment of the business done at the king’s baking house, were required to take down the ovens which they had builded and reared in defiance of their right, and in neglect of their duty to him. The king’s jealousy for the interests of his ovens, and reasonable dissatisfaction with a populace who would fain have used his markets without paying him rent for the use of its stalls, may have influenced him when, a year later, he disfranchised,¹ with a stroke of the pen, the entire commonalty of the town, with the exception of the mayor, the bailiff, twenty-four burgesses, and those forty-eight of “the moost wise and sadde commons” whom the mayor, bailiff, and twenty comburgesses should appoint from time to time to vote at the elections of the common “halles and assembles herafter to be “holden ther, aswel for the eleccioun of the maiour, of “the justices of the peax, and burges of the parlamentes, “as also for the assessing of any lawful imposicion as “otherwise.” The alleged reasons for this act of “reformation” being that the disenfranchised inhabitants are needy persons, contributing little or nothing towards the taxes of the borough, and have by their “exclamacions “and hedynges” occasioned disorder at the assemblies, and bad government to the town. A fine example this, certainly, of Tudor high-handedness in dealing with popular privileges, especially when we consider that it proceeded from the first of the dynasty, and not from those of his posterity who were “to the manner born!”

“ Recept. Scaccarii ” is a much confused record. The payments and issues are entered promiscuously by a slovenly clerk, “ T. Stokes,” (horresco referens! and record his name as a warning to all careless scribes!), whose uniformly bad handwriting is sometimes rendered very perplexing by his use of ambiguous contractions. Some of its entries of “ issues ” deserve particular attention, as they define the special purposes for which important payments from the Treasury were made.

Respecting the majority of the original grants referred to in the Auditor’s Calendar of Files, sufficient evidence may be found in the other records from which materials have been taken for the present volume; but for much of the business transacted at the receipt of the Exchequer in the earlier years of Henry the Seventh, the Auditor’s Calendar is the only source of official testimony. The extracts, however, from this register, respecting grants of which there is other evidence, will be of service to the historical inquirer, as they exhibit the various degrees of regularity with which the allowances were paid, and indicate the times when the grants came to an end, from the death of grantees or other contingencies.

Condition
of the other records.

The satisfactory condition of the Patent, Close, French, and Charter Rolls saved the Editor from much difficulty in examining their contents. This was the more fortunate as a considerable minority of Privy Seal writs and signed bills are so torn and otherwise injured that their purport could only be ascertained by comparing what was legible of their writing with their respective enrolments. These last-named documents are so numerous and their objects are so various that any attempt to give a prefatory indication of their contents would not furnish much assistance to the inquiring reader.

Privy seals and signed bills.

For his convenience, however, it is desirable that he should be informed of the plan on which the dates of the writings have been set forth, from which he may ascertain the king's place of residence during the greater part of the time covered by the volume. In every case where the day on which it passed from the sovereign's hand and the day of its enrolment appear on one of these documents, the Editor's notice of the writ gives both dates—the former being printed on the margin, whilst the latter is inserted after the letter E, towards the close of the memorandum. Hence, in the greater number of cases, the marginal date of the abstract of a Privy Seal writ indicates the day on which it was given, and marks a time when the sovereign was at the place where it was dated. But in the many cases where only one date appears on a record, the single date—whether it refer to the time at which the order was made, or to the time when by enrolment it came into operation—is put on the margin. The reader, therefore, may not rely on a marginal date as evidence of the sovereign's presence at a particular place, unless the notice to which it is attached exhibits a date of enrolment. The reader should also bear in mind that he will occasionally come upon a writ which, although enrolled and thereby rendered operative in the year to which it pertains, was dated in a previous year of the king's reign.

This volume opens with the 22 August 1486, and closes with December 1490. This space covers a period of very varied interest in the early years of the king's reign. The subject which must have been of paramount importance and anxiety to his own mind—that of his title to the crown—had, it was presumed, been sufficiently discussed by both Parliament and people, and finally settled. The reversal of former attainders of those of his own party—his own and his mother's among them!—had been legalised. The promise made by the Countess of Richmond to the Duke of Buckingham of the marriage of her son with Elizabeth of York, on condition that he, the Duke, would surrender the claim to the throne—and that not a slight one—which he proposed to prefer, had been fulfilled. Henry and Elizabeth had been married with great pomp and circumstance, and the king had led his bride to the throne and placed her by his side as wife and queen. The devastating effects of the Wars of the Roses had begun to be forgotten. And although it was not to be expected that the assumption of the crown would fail to bring its natural consequences in the shape of personal impostures, local insurrections, and warlike menaces from abroad, an event which presents us with one of the few amenities of the reign took place at an opportune moment. The queen in due time presented her husband and the nation with a prince, about whose title to the succession there could, happily, be no doubt. This auspicious event seems to have improved the relation between husband and wife; removed many anxious apprehensions among the more serious of the people; deepened the nation's new-born loyalty, and given rise to the pomps and pageantries (the splendour of which can be realised by the accounts in this volume) with which the royal infant was created Prince of Wales, Earl of Chester, and Duke of Cornwall.

Other events, however, of more serious import will be noted. Lambert Simmel's brief triumph in Ireland was followed, at an interval of a few months, by his abject humiliation in England. The phrenzy of Dublin and the battle of Stoke were the chief scenes of a drama begun and ended in Henry's second year. The northern rising was the incident of 1488; and hangmen and escheators had barely completed the work of vengeance on the participators in that miserable revolt, when the nation's ancient antagonism to France, and her growing indignation at the policy of that country towards a feeble neighbour, found vent in measures for a contemplated relief of Brittany.

Domestic matters.

Containing many important and a still larger number of interesting data relating to the political incidents of this eventful period, the present volume is especially rich in matters illustrative of the sovereign's domestic concerns, and more particularly of his relations with his queen and her mother, the queen dowager. The Editor prefers to delay the examination of this subject—which is undoubtedly one of great importance in estimating the character of the king and its bearing upon his private and political conduct—to a time when it can be more fully discussed. Whatever may be the verdict pronounced on this point, it is right just now to draw attention to pp. 265–271, in which the great charter, drawn in exact accordance with precedents provided in similar grants to previous queens of England, shows at least that what Henry took from the mother was at an early opportunity transferred to the daughter; a fact probably unknown to Bacon, when, with one of his sneering inconsistencies, he says that the obloquy which rested on Henry from his treatment of his wife's mother “was somewhat sweetened to him by a great confiscation.”¹ It cannot at least be denied that Henry at this early period of his reign was too sagacious, if not too generous, to exhibit towards his consort any of the parsimoniousness which is said to have distinguished his treatment of her in after years. If he regarded her popularity with dislike and jealousy, and her attempted exercise of authority with suspicion, he was sufficiently mindful of his own dignity, and indulgent to his own tastes, to surround her with appropriate splendour and invest her with all the appearance of queenly power.

But although it brings us to a time when the great Tudor adventurer had overcome the first obstacles to his ambition, and was gradually revealing the peculiar characteristics of his nature and policy; the effects of which were apparent for well nigh 120 years in the noble strain of the House of Tudor—the period of England's dignity—until the reaction came with the pedant king from the north and the evils begotten of his ignoble narrowness; the present volume closes before the point at which it will be convenient to take a comprehensive survey of the opening years of his reign, and to show that to meet the crisis in England's history the hour was come, and the man.¹ Under these circumstances it is thought advisable to withhold any long introduction until the published materials shall have furnished illustrations and proofs sufficient for such a task. Meantime the reader is referred to the accompanying index, which will exhibit the multifarious data of a volume equally communicative on matters of revenue and expenditure, on details of civil government and military administration, on the splendours of courtly life, the remuneration of social industries, the development of a new kingly policy, and the simpler but not less interesting details of personal story.

¹ Henry's character was no less suited to the requirements of a new state of society than those of such men as Cromwell or William of Orange; and he appeared at a much more important crisis in his country's history than either.

¹ This very interesting document was found, together with similar records relating to coronations, in the MSS. recently transferred, by command of Her Majesty, from the Lord Chamberlain's department to the Record Office. Had it come to the editor in time for insertion in the fittest place, it would have appeared at the beginning of the first, instead of appearing at the beginning of the second volume of the present collection.

Commission or writ of inquiry, addressed to John Sulliard, knt., Christopher Willughby, knt., Henry Wentworth, knt., John Hevenyngham, knt., George Hopton, Robert Cleere, William Mykelfeld, Thomas Appulton, and Thomas Banyard, reciting—that by an inquisition post mortem, taken before Gregory Lovell, late escheator of Suffolk, it appeared that a fine levied in the quinzain of St. Hilary, 25 Hen. VI., before Richard Neuton and his fellows in the Common Pleas, and recorded in the quinzain of Easter, 26 Hen. VI., between Thomas Hoo, jun., and Bartholomew Bohne, complainants, and Thomas

2 Hen.VII. Dacre, knt., and Elizabeth his wife, deforciant, with respect to (inter alia) the manors of Northales, Cove, Bowflorry, Thorington, Burgh next Grundisbrough, Wrentham, Benacre, and Henstede, and the advowson of the abbey of Sibton, and priory of Blybrough, co. Suffolk, whereby the premises were limited to the said Thomas and Elizabeth his wife for their lives; and upon their death the manors of Wrentham, Benacre, Hensted, Thorington, and Burgh next Grundesbrough, were to remain to Robert Fenys and Philippa his wife, with remainder to the issue of the said Philippa, in default to Richard Fenys and Joan his wife, and the issue of the said Joan. By virtue of this fine, the said Thomas Dacre and Elizabeth his wife entered into possession, and, both dying, they were succeeded in the premises last set forth by Robert Fenys and Philippa his wife; and, Philippa dying, the said Richard Fenys and Joan his wife entered into possession, and disseised the said Robert Fenys: subsequently the said Richard Fenys died, and his wife Joan outlived him, whereupon the said Robert Fenys ousted her, and now holds possession of the last-mentioned premises. The inquisition further sets forth that the said Joan Fenys died 8 Mar. last past, and that Thomas Fenys, jun., Lord Dacre, is her nearest kinsman and heir. The present commission further recites an information that the said Richard Fenys and Joan did not unjustly disseise the said Robert Fenys of the premises, but that the latter surrendered his interest therein to the said Richard Fenys and Joan his wife and her issue; and directs the aforesaid commissioners to make inquest as to whether the said Robert Fenys did so surrender his interest, and whether under pretext of such surrender the said Joan Fenys, at the time of her death, held the premises in fee tail.  No. 168.

Whereas it has been made known to the king by the 30 Jan.
 lamentable relation of his beloved liegeman, John Burton, alias John Kelmestot, citizen and clothier of London, That, whilst sailing from the king's port of Winchelse to the port of Rone in Normandy, with his ship called "The Mary of London," and laden with goods and merchandise to the value of two hundred and seventy-two pounds and ten pence, on the feast of St. Andrew, 22 Edw. IV., the said John Burton, alias Kelmestot, was despoiled of his said ship, goods, and merchandise, by a certain Rike de Toweres of Ostend in Flanders, and many pirates from Flanders associated with him, in two ships of war then lying in the Cambre near Wynchelse, which said pirates took the said ship, goods, and merchandise to Ostend, and there disposed of them at their pleasure; and That the said John, having gone to Ostend at his own cost, has vainly appealed for justice and restitution of his property to the authorities there, who have delayed to do him justice out of their affection for a certain Andrew Clerk, owner of the said two ships of war, and burgomaster of the town of Ostend, into whose 1488. hands the said ship "The Mary of London," with her ^{3 Hen. VII.} said goods and merchandise, has passed by livery of the said pirates; and That the said John, after enduring endless delay, with menaces of death by the said pirates, has returned to England without redress:—Mandate to all sheriffs, mayors, &c., of all towns of England, and also of Calese and the marches thereof, to make reprisals on the ships and merchandise of the said Andrew Clerk and of all other persons of Ostend, and of the town of New Port, in Flanders, entering any port of England or Calese; and to seize such ships and merchandize, and on their execution of the said mandate to certify the king of the number and value of the ships and merchandize so seized. VII. and of the inquisition taken in pursuance of the said commission at Corf Castle, on Monday next after the feast of St. Scholastica the virgin, 4 Ric. II., before John Newborough, knt., Roger Bysthorne, and John de Mouldham. It is found that all the liberties, customs, and rights pertain to the castle and lordship of Corf, as contained in the custumary of the castle, found in the custody of Philip Walewyn, constable there, and also in the custumary of the town, found in ancient writing, in the missal of the parish church. It is found that the whole isle of Purbyk is a royal warren and pertains to the said castle; also that the whole town of Corf pertains to the said castle, and that the tenants thereof are called barons, elect their mayor, coroner, and bedells, and are as free as the barons of the Cinque Ports. The boundaries and customs of Purbyk, Corf, &c., are set forth at length. Further it is found that the meadow and pasture, between Corfhayes and the house of the parson of Corf, with the pasture on the mountain to the bounds of Nordone, belong to the king, and that common of pasture everywhere within the liberty of Corf, with the waste land, pertains to the tenants of the town; that the mayor of the town has the peisage everywhere within and without the said liberty, throughout the whole warren, and pasturage for one horse in the king's pasture called Castelles. Lastly, it is found that the presentation to the parish church of Corf Castle of old pertained to the king, but that the abbess of Shaftesbury has appropriated it, as in right of her manor of Kynggeston in Purbyk; of the right of the said abbess thereto the jury is ignorant. Pat. p. 1. m. 12 (15).

Charter, granting to the king's very dear consort, 6 March.
Elizabeth queen of England: That she may have and take for her life all the goods and chattels of all her men and tenants (holding entirely and not holding entirely, as well residents as non-residents, and all others dwelling within or upon all and each the castles, lordships, and manors, towns, &c., of which the said consort, by virtue of divers letters patent, stands seized for the term of her life, or hereafter shall by any means be seized, and within or upon any parcel thereof), being either fugitives, or felons de se, or persons condemned and convicted of felony of any kind, or outlawed by reason of felony or offence of any kind, at the suit of the king, his heirs or successors, or at the suit of the queen consort herself, or of any other person or party whatsoever; all and each the aforesaid goods and chattels of such persons being forfeited or to be forfeited at the suit of any person, whether it be

1488. before the king himself, his heirs or successors, or before 3 Hen.VII. his or their justices, sheriffs, escheators, coroners, bailiffs, officers, and ministers, in all courts and places whatsoever; although such men or tenants, or any one of them, may hold of the king, or his successors, or of any other person or persons; and although such men or tenants be sheriffs, escheators, coroners, tax-collectors, customers, bailiffs, or ministers of the king or his successors, or of any other person, wheresoever the crimes may be committed, although the delinquents or delinquent shall have fled from the fee of said consort to the fee of the king or his successors, or to the fee of any other persons, or from the fee of the king or his successors, or of any other person to the fee of the said consort:—And that without any hindrance from the king, his justices and other servants, she and her bailiffs, ministers, and servants may from time to time, during her life, take, keep, and put to her use and profit in perpetuity the goods and chattels of such persons, in all the cases aforesaid. And that the same consort may have for all her life all and each the “escapes” and “evasions” as well of felons as of others, as well the judged as those to be judged, and all fines and amerciaments of every kind for such escapes and evasions of every kind, happening by any means within or without the castles, lordships, manors, towns, &c. And that by her bailiffs and ministers she may take to her own use the “escapes” and “evasions,” and also the amerciaments for the same persons, after they have been judged, without any impediment or hindrance. And further, that she may have for her whole life a return of all writs, as well of certificates and attaints of assize as of other writs, and of the extracts and precepts of all justices whatsoever; and also of attachiaments of pleas of the crown, as of the bills, mandates, and precepts of justices, sheriffs, escheators, &c.; and may also have execution of all kinds of the same writs, summonses, extracts, bills, mandates, and precepts, by her own minis-

3 Hen. VII. ters, within her said castles, lordships, manors, towns, &c. 1488.
So that no justice, sheriff, escheator, admiral, custos or justice of the peace, seneschal, mareschal, coroner, or any other bailiff or minister of the crown, or of any other person, shall enter the said castles, lordships, &c., in the execution of his office, or to do any matter touching his office, by any writ, precept, mandate, summons, extract, or any warrant, in the county where they may or shall be resident, so long as execution of such writs, precepts, mandates, summonses, &c. can be done within the aforesaid castles, lordships, manors, &c., or any part thereof, by the queen's own sheriffs or ministers, although several or one of the king's sheriffs, bailiffs, or other ministers may find some such men, holding entirely or not entirely, &c., without the said castles, lordships, manors, &c.; but that from time to time, as often as and whenever it shall be necessary, it shall be entrusted to the queen consort's bailiffs and ministers, who shall be for the time within the counties or places where execution of this kind ought to be done, and to no one else, to do execution duly. And that she may have for all her life all fines for transgressions, misprisions, offences, neglects, oppressions, extortions, conspiracies, concealments, regratings, forestallings, maintenances, cheatings, falsifications, escapes of felons, clerks, convicts, or attainted persons, &c., and fines for concealments, fines for licence of agreeing, fines for contempt, fines for vert and following game, fines for false claim, and all fines, redemptions, forfeitures, issues, amerciements, as well of persons her men and tenants, &c., aforesaid, as also of their pledges and sureties of all tithings, hundreds, wapentakes, lathes, and hundreds whatsoever, within the said lordships, manors, &c. . . . And that the said consort may have for all her life within the said castles, lordships, manors, towns, &c., and any part thereof, all hidages of every kind, and chattels called wayffs and strays, deodands, treasure-trove, and other found things and chattels, wreck of sea,

1488. and royal fishes, whenever they shall come within the ^{3 Hen.VII.} castles, lordships, &c., pleas de vetito namio, view of frank-pledge and sheriff's turn before her seneschals of the said castles, lordships, &c.; and also all sums of money called tythynges, penyes, certain rent or certain fines, sherif's-aid, hundred-sylver, shiref-geld, shiref-tooche, &c. And also that she and all her men, residents and tenants aforesaid, may be free and quit of all tolls, picages, pannages, murages, stallages, and other customs whatsoever throughout all king's dominions in England. And that she and her men, tenants and residents aforesaid, living in towns and places where there are certain obligations for her horses, may be quit and exonerated towards the king, his heirs and successors, from all prises, cheminages, and captions of carriages, horses, cars, wagons, and other vehicles, and also of corn, barley, rye, oats, beans, peas, oxen, cows, hogs, little pigs, goats, ³/₄ kids, lambs, calves, capons, cocks, pullets, pigeons, and other winged things, of rabbits, eggs, salt, hay, timber, wood, underwood fuel, coal, and all other "utensils" and victuals whatsoever. And that no buyer, purveyor, or other minister of the king's household, shall enter the said castles, lordships, &c. to take any of these things during her life without her special consent and licence. And that she may have to her own use, and be able to appoint during her whole life the clerk of the market within the said castles, lordships, manors, &c. And that the same clerk of the market, as well in the king's presence as in his absence, may within the said castles, lordships, manors, &c. have such power and authority as pertain elsewhere to the clerk of the market of the king's own household. And that the clerk of the market of the king's household may by no means enter the said castles, lordships, manors, &c., to do anything pertaining to his office. And that the queen consort may have all fines, redemptions, and amerciements, issues, and forfeitures occurring before the said clerk. And that she may have for her whole life her free warren in

3 Hen. VII. each and all her demesne lands within the said castles, lordships, manors, &c. And that no one may enter and hunt within the same free warren, or any part of the same, under a penalty of forfeiture of ten pounds, to be recovered and taken to her use as often he shall have transgressed. And that she may have for her whole life, by letters patent to be made in due form, such justices as she shall choose to nominate, having by those letters patent sufficient power and authority to do, exercise, and execute all such things as justices itinerant would be able or ought to do in any of the forests whatsoever granted or assigned to her by the king, or hereafter to be granted or assigned to her by him, his heirs and successors, as often as it shall be necessary and seem expedient to her; together with all fines, amerciaments, redemptions, and issues, made, adjudicated, forfeited, &c., before the same justices. And that she may take by the hands of her bailiffs and ministers the fines, amerciaments, issues, and forfeitures, and all those other profits from all men, tenants and residents aforesaid, by extract of the same justices itinerant on their journies, to be delivered to the same bailiffs and ministers; although the same men, tenents or residents, or any one of them, shall be sheriffs, escheators, coroners, tax-collectors, bailiffs, or ministers of the king, his heirs or his successors, or shall hold in any manner from the king or his same consort, or of others. And that she may have for all her life all her charters, letters patent, and writs whatsoever in the king's chancery, and in all other the king's courts, without anything or any fine to be taken, paid, or done in this respect, for any seal of any one of them, great or small. It is further willed and granted that neither the seneschal, mareschal, nor coroner of the king's court of the marshalsy, nor any minister, serjeant, or officer thereof, shall enter within the queen's fees and lands to do any of their offices without her special licence. It is granted also to the said consort that all her castles, lordships, manors, towns, &c. shall, by land

- 8 May. John, lord of Dynham, came into the king's chancery at Westminster, and acknowledged an indenture of agreement, made 1 July, 18 Edw. IV., between the said lord, lord of the manor of Hertland, co. Devon, and

3 Hen.VII. patron of the monastery or abbey of Hertlond (of which monastery or abbey the ancestors of the John Dynham, lord of Dynham, were the founders) on the one part, and Richard Tavton, the present abbot, and the convent of the said monastery or abbey, on the other part. The indenture recites that from the time of the vacation of the said monastery or abbey through the death of Richard Tavton, last immediate predecessor of the aforesaid Richard Tavton, the present abbot, dissension had arisen between the two parties on divers matters, and that the said two parties, in order to put an end for ever to their strifes and discords, at the mediation of the author of peace, and on the intervention of honourable and discreet men, namely, Charles Dynham, esq., John Denys of Orlegh, Richard Wydeslade, John Leigny, William Coffyn, and Wydeslade (friends of both parties) had agreed that, in the future, on the abbey becoming vacant either by the death or retirement of the abbot, or from any other cause, the prior claustral of the said abbey, if there should happen to be one for the time, or, otherwise, any canon of the said monastery appointed by the convent for the purpose, after the funeral or immediately after the death of the last abbot, deceased, or (in case the vacation should result from the retirement of the last abbot) after the last abbot's resignation had been announced by the ordinary to the convent, should by letters patent under the common seal of the monastery notify the vacation to John lord Dynham, his heirs or his assigns, being lords of the said manor of Hertlond, as founders and patrons of the monastery (if he or they dwell within the cos. Devon, Cornwall, Dorset, Somerset, Essex, Suthampton, Buks, Oxon, Surrey, or London), praying him in the said letters to grant the convent licence to elect a new abbot; which letter having been duly delivered to him or them, the said John, lord Dynham, or his heirs or assigns, &c. should, within three days from the receipt of the notification, grant free licence for the election; the prior and convent having 1488. right and power to proceed to a new election, without ^{3 Hen.VII.} such permission, should Lord Dynham or his heirs refuse to grant the licence in due time, or be absent from the said counties, or in any way have withdrawn and absented himself or themselves. Further, quit-reclaim and release by John, lord Dynham, for himself, &c., to the aforesaid Richard, the present abbot, the convent, and their successors of his right and claim, and of everything claimed by him or his ancestors of and in the said abbey, in time of vacation thereof, by title of patron or founder of the abbey, the ancient and customary prayers of the said abbey for him and them, together with other rights and privileges, being reserved to John, lord Dynham, his heirs and assigns.

III. and the first of Ric. II. Given at Westminster. E. May 10. P. S. No. 89. Pat. p. 2. m. 21 (1).
- 10 May. Mandate to John Stephens, reve and collector of the lordship of Rodley, parcel of the duchy of Lancaster, to forbear from interrupting John Vyel in the enjoyment of a certain meadow and pasture there, granted to him for a term under the seal of the said duchy. L. R.
- 10 May. Grant, for life, to Edmund Pylgryme, clerk, of the chantry within the king's manor of Gymyngham, vacant by the death of Robert Ode, the last possessor of the same, and in the king's gift by reason of the duchy of Lancaster. L. B.
- 10 May. Grant, for life, in consideration of good service, to Henry Pudsey of the office of keeper of the king's woods with his lordship of Barnowlyk, parcel of the duchy of Lancaster, co. York; with the ancient and customary wages and fees of the office out of the issues and revenues

3 Hen. VII. of the said lordship; it being, however, stipulated that 1488.
the grant should become void, should the grantee receive from the king or his heirs another office, of greater or equal value. L. B.

Grant, for life, to Thomas Poyntz, an esquire for the 10 May.
king's body, of the offices of Steward of the hundred of Bysley, co. Gloucester, and keeper of the parks of Barnesley, Brymfeld, and Miserden, co. Gloucester, which hundred and parks will, on the death of Cecil, duchess of York, revert to the king and his consort Elizabeth, in right of the said Elizabeth. Further grant of the emoluments now enjoyed by Edward Raleigh, knt., John Hudelston, Roger Carpes, and John Mody, who at present severally fill those offices. Given at Westminster.
E. May 10. P. S. No. 98. Pat. p. 1. m. 23 (4).

The king to the treasurer and chamberlains of the 10 May.

Letters patent constituting Pontefract a borough-town, 15 July.
with municipal privileges and government by a mayor, to be elected annually, and twelve aldermen; Richard Jackson to be the first mayor of the new corporation. The letters patent, defining the powers of the magistrates at great length, and granting to the people of Pontefract the right to a market guild, with liberties and municipal customs as full and free as those enjoyed by the people of Stanford, proceed not only from the king's affection and love for the inhabitants of Pontefract, but also from his mindfulness of their good and acceptable services, rendered spontaneously to him at their great cost, expense, and manifold charges, and from his desire that they should be worthily remunerated for their labour and sacrifices in his behalf. Together with other powers and privileges, the mayor and burgesses of Pontefract receive authority to collect the king's rents, as well those of the town of itself, as those of Castelferne, Andrewferme, and Plowland-ferme "with the wind-mill, tolls, escheats, and other profits" coming to the king, paying to the king yearly, for these sources of revenue, forty-nine pounds thirteen shillings and four pence. The burgesses of Pontefract are further invested with the right to hold a weekly market, and two fairs in each year; so long as no injury is done thereby to other fairs and markets of the neighbourhood:—"Et insuper concessimus et concedimus et per presentes confirmamus eisdem maiori et burgensibus ejusdem ville sive burgi Pontis Fracti quod ipsi et successores sui habeant infra villam sive burgum predictum unum mercatum tenendum ibidem qualibet septimana in perpetuum quolibet die Sabati, ac annuatim in perpetuum duas Ferias ibidem, unam videlicet feriam inde in die dominica Ramis-

1489. persons (whose names are effaced from the parchment) 8 Hen.VII. to collect ccxxxiii. li., the first half of the proportion of the subsidy to be raised in his diocese. The writing of this writ is so worn and obscured that it is doubtful whether ccxxxiii. li. is the precise sum.

The bishop of St. Davids, certifying that he has appointed the prior and convent of the priory of St. Nicholas, Pembroke, to collect xiiii. li. in the archdeaconry of St. Davids; and the abbot and convent of the monastery of Talley to collect vi. li. xii. s. vi. d. ob. in the archdeaconry of Carmarthen; and the prior and convent of the priory of Malvern Major, of the diocese of Worcester, appropriators of the parish church of Merthir, in the archdeaconry of Brecon, to collect xix. li. ii. s. iii. d. in the said archdeaconry; and the abbot and convent of the monastery of Vale Royal, in the diocese of Coventry and Lichfield, appropriators of the church of Llanpadarn Fawr, in the diocese of St. Davids, to collect xviii. li. xiii. s. vi. d. in the archdeaconry of Cardigan, for the payment of the first half of the proportion of the subsidy to be raised in the diocese of the said bishop, who records that he was at "his mansion of Bridewell, London," when he received the king's writ with proper reverence.

The bishop of St. Asaph, certifying the treasurer and barons of the Exchequer that he has appointed the abbot and convent of the monastery of Strata Marcella (Ystrat Marchel), Montgomeryshire, to collect the xl. li., the first half of the proportion of the subsidy to be raised in his diocese.

The bishop of Llandaff, certifying the treasurer and barons of the Exchequer that he has appointed the abbot and convent of the monastery of Tewsbury, appropriators of the parish church of Caerdiff, in the diocese of Llandaff, to levy and collect the xiii. li. vi. s. viii. d., the first half of the proportion of the subsidy to be raised in his diocese.

The abbot of the exempt monastery of St. Alban, of

- 4 Hen.VII. the order of St. Benedict and in the diocese of Lincoln, certifying the treasurer and barons of the Exchequer that he has appointed his brother monk, John Bensted, the cellarer of the said monastery, to collect, within the said abbot's exempt jurisdiction, the lxvi. li. xiii. s. iii. d., the first half the proportion of the subsidy to be raised therein. Also, the king's writ to the said abbot, ordering him to return to the treasurer and barons of the Exchequer the name of his collector. 1489.

VII. at the time of the peace of Edward IV., gave the same to John late duke of Norfolk, and the said Elizabeth his wife, and their issue, with respect to the right heirs of the said duke. The said John died leaving issue (by the said Elizabeth) Anne. Subsequently by an Act passed in Parliament holden 16 Jan., 18 Edw. IV., it was enacted that the said Elizabeth should enjoy the aforesaid manor of Weston Baldok, for life, the remainder thereof, on her death, and on the death of the said Anne, to pertain to Richard duke of York, the king's second son. The said Anne dying, the reversion of the above manor descended to John Howard last duke of Norfolk as son of Margaret, and to William (then viscount, now) marquis Berkeley, as son of Elizabeth, (which Margaret and Elizabeth were sisters of John, father of John, father of John, father of the said Anne). Whereupon the said John Howard duke of Norfolk, and the said marquess made partition between them of the aforesaid reversion, and of the manor of Kelsale, co. Suffolk, and of the other lands whereof the said Anne died seized, whereby the aforesaid reversion was, inter alia, allotted to the marquess, and the aforesaid manor to the duke. And the said Richard duke of York died. And afterwards by an Act of Parliament, holden 7 Nov., 1 Hen. VII., the said John Howard the last duke of Norfolk was attainted of high treason, and his possessions declared forfeited: and by an inquisition taken at the town of St. Albans, Herts., on Tuesday next after the feast of the Nativity of the Virgin, 2 Hen. VII., before William Say, knt., and John Forster, esq., commissioners appointed in that behalf, and returned into the Exchequer, it was found that the said John Howard late duke of Norfolk was seized of the aforesaid manor of Weston juxta Baldok. And by another inquisition taken at Hertford, co. Herts., on Thursday, 8 Jan., 4 Hen. VII., before Henry Tay, esq., the sheriff of that county, and returned into the Exchequer, it was found that the said Elizabeth duchess of Norfolk, the petitioner, had oc-

5 Hen. VII. cupied and taken the profits of the aforesaid manor of Weston-juxta-Baldok from the period of the said late duke's forfeiture: subsequently this manor was seized into the king's hands by virtue of the said Act, and the first-named inquisition. - 23 Nov. The king to his escheator, co. Hertford. Whereas by a certain inquisition, taken before Thomas Smyth late the king's escheator in the said county, it has been found that John Barre, knt., father of Isabella (named in the writ), was seized of the manors of Knebbeworth, the Trehous, and Waters, and fourteen messuages, four tofts, eight gardens, thirteen carucates and a hundred acres of arable land, twenty acres of meadow, a hundred acres of pasture, forty acres of wood, and rent of xxvi. li., in Thebruge, Brydell, Westwyk, Quathamsted, Hatfeld, Bishop's Codicote, Knebbeworth, Kyngeswalden, Kymyton, Burleye, Steuenache, Gauele, Wilmondeley, Wylyen, Baldok, Radewell, Coldecote, Cherleton, Dynesley, Barnet, Northawe, Chesthunt, Herford, the town of St. Alban's, Hychyn, Dachworth, Ware, Amwell, and Bunttyngford, and also of the advowson of the parish church of Knebbeworth, co. Hertford; and that being so seized at the time of his death, the same John Barre, knt., had issue the aforesaid Isabella, late countess of Devon and late wife of Thomas Bourgehier senior, knt., which Thomas and Isabella, after the death of the said John Barre, entered into the premises, as in right of the said Isabella, daughter and heir of the said John; and that the said Thomas and Isabella had issue, Isabella deceased without issue; and that afterwards a fine was levied between William Kynardesley, clk., and William Payforer, plaintiffs, and the said Thomas Bourgehier senior, knt., and Isabella his wife, deforciant, by which the said Thomas and Isabella acknowledged that the premises were the right of the said William Kynardesley, being those which the same William Kynardesley and William Payforer had of the gift of the said Thomas Bourgehier and Isabella his wife, &c. &c. &c.; for which recognition, &c., the said William Kynardesley and William Payforer, 5Hen.VII. by the same fine, granted the premises to the said Thomas and Isabella, to hold to them and the issue of their bodies, with remainder in default to the issue of the body of the said Isabella, with remainder in default to the issue of the body of the said Thomas, with remainder in default to Thomas Burghchier junior, knt., Humfrey Talbot, knt., William Pykenham, clk., David ap Eli Morgan, esq., John Mountford, clk., John Lyle, esq., Robert Stowell, esq., William Taye, Thomas Balles, and John Nalton, and the heirs of the same John Nalton, for the use of the said Thomas Burghchier, his heirs and assigns; by virtue of which fine the said Thomas and Isabella his wife were seized of the premises, and had lawful issue now dead, after which the said Isabella late countess died so seized, and the said Thomas survived her, and was seized of the premises, &c.; and that the said Thomas and Isabella were also seized of the manor of Ayet St. Laurens, with the advowson of the church of Ayet, in right of the said Isabella, the reversion thereof pertaining to the right heirs of the said John Barre, and the said Isabella died, being so seized; and the said Thomas Bourghchier, her husband, survived her, and was seized of the same, in his demesne as of freehold, the reversion thereof pertaining to Edmund Cornwaill, knt., Richard Delabere, knt., and William Hammer, esq., cousins and heirs as well of the said John Barre as of the said Isabella the said countess, viz.: Edmund Cornwaill as the son of Thomas, the son of Elizabeth, the sister of the said John Barre; and Richard Delabere as son of Joan another sister of the said John Barre; and William Hammer as the son of Agnes another of the sisters of the same John Barre; the said manor of Ayet being held of the king, as of the honor of Maundeuytle, parcel of the duchy of Lancaster, by homage, fealty, and service of one hawk, or two shillings, for the same, to be rendered yearly at the feast of St. Peter ad Vincula, and the other premises being held of others as of the king:—Precepts to the escheator to remove the 1490. king's hand from the premises, which were taken into the ⁵Hen.VII. same by reason of the death of the same Isabella, and to deliver them to Thomas Bourghchier. Cl. m. 4 (13).—Concurrent writ of livery, for Thomas Bourghchier, addressed to the king's escheator, co. Gloucester, in respect to a certain fourth part of the manors of Teynton and Kyleote, in said co., which Hugh Shelwyke and Henry Quarell, by charter dated 20 Jan., 35 Hen. VI., conveyed to John Barre, knt., and Joan his then wife, to hold to them and the issue of their bodies, with remainder in default to the heirs lawfully to be begotten by John Barre, with remainder in default to Isabella, daughter of the said John Barre, who was at one time the wife of Humfrey Stafford (late earl of Devon, deceased, late son and heir of William Stafford, deceased), and not long since the wife of Thomas Bourghchier senior, knt., son of Henry late earl of Essex, and the heir lawfully begotten of the said Isabella, and in default to the right heirs of the said John Barre, knt., for ever; by virtue of which demise the said John and Joan were seized of the premises, and being so seized John died without issue of him and the said Joan; after which Joan was seized of the premises, after the possibility of issue from her by the said John was extinct, and so died; on whose death the said fourth part of the said two manors descended to Thomas Bourghchier and Isabella his wife, and they were seized of them, in right of the same Isabella, as heir of the said John Barre and his daughter by his first wife Idome, until 1 March, 4 Hen. VII., on which day the said Isabella died. Cl. m. 3 (14).—Concurrent and similar writ of livery, for Thomas Bourghchier senior, knt., addressed to the king's escheator co. hold the said town, for ever, with all its franchises at

xx. s. for the fee-farm rent, and xiii. s. iii. d. for the tenth and fifteenth thereof, from 6 Nov., 28 Hen. VI.—
This patent opens with a recital that the burgesses and tenants of Melcolme Regis petitioned the parliament, holden at Leicester, 5 Feb., 4 Hen. VI., to the effect that on account of their poverty they were unable to pay the fee-farm of eight marks, and tenths and fifteenths, which amounted to ix. li. xv. s. ; whereupon a commission of enquiry was addressed to John, the bishop of Bath,

5 Hen. VII. William Cloyne, and John Juyn, to ascertain what amounts ought to be paid. These commissioners took an inquisition thereupon on Thursday next before Michaelmas day, 9 Hen. VI., and found that, on account of the desolate state and poverty of the town, no more than xx. s. ought to be paid for fee-farm, and xiii. s. iiii. d. for tenths and fifteenths. Nevertheless the burgesses were distrained by process of the Exchequer, and were in such straits that it was proposed by them to abandon the town, and seek livelihood elsewhere. Whereupon the burgesses besought the said king for a remedy, and he in reply, by patent 8 July, 15 Hen. VI., granted to the said burgesses and tenants that they should hold the town of Melcombe Regis, co. Dorset, during pleasure, with all its franchises and liberties, at a rent of xx. s. instead of the ancient fee-farm, and xiii. s. iiii. d. for every fifteenth and tenth, when granted; which patent, however, was rendered null and void by the act of resumption of the parliament holden 28 Hen. VI. L. B. No. 69. Pat. m. 27 (9).
